Davison Picks Burial Place Before He Goes on Table For Operation Which Ends Fatally

NEW YORK, May 6.—Henry P. Davison, member of the banking firm of J. P. Morgan and company, and a leading figure in the American Red Cross during the world war, died at 1:30 this afternoon on the operating table while surgeons were attempting to remove a tumor from his brain at his country estate in Locust Valley, L. I.

He had met the problems of life. Known on the street as one who never showed undue alarm, he took no formal farewell of his family and joked with his loved ones while he was preparing to leave with his close associates two requests, in case he should die under the ether.

PICKS BURIAL SPOT
His first request was that he should be laid to rest in the Locust Valley with its green and flowering apple blossoms that he had loved. The second request was that his funeral should be as simple and unostentatious as possible. Those close to him, who tonight faced the sad duty of planning the funeral, said both requests would be respected.

It was only last night that announcement was made that Mr. Davison, who went under the knife last August, would have to undergo another operation today. The first operation, performed to relieve the pressure on the auditory nerve, which produced headaches and insomnia, disclosed the tumor. Its removal was not attempted then because it was felt the patient could not stand further loss of blood and anaesthesia.

BULLETIN OF FAILURE
He did not rally as well as had been expected, however, and the surgeons decided that another operation was imperative. This bulletin, issued about 2 o'clock, told of failure.

Mr. Henry P. Davison died today upon the conclusion of an operation upon an infiltration tumor in the brain which could only be partially removed.

It was decided to operate in the financier's home at Peacock Point instead of at the Roosevelt hospital in this city, where the first operation was performed.

Those calling at the White House were Senator Lodge, Massachusetts, the Republican leader, Chairman McCumber and Senators Curtis of Kansas and Watson of Indiana, members of the finance committee. The senators said the president had given no information as to his opinion of the amended house bill, but asked many questions concerning its provisions.

NO MORE TAXES WANTED
The president was told, senators said, that it was the desire of congressional leaders that no additional taxes be enacted in connection with the bonus and that it would be impossible to put a sales tax through congress. While no specific plan of financing the bonus was presented to the executive it is the thought of some congressmen that the legislation can be financed out of the refunded British bonds.

SMOOT AND MCCUMBER
Neither the commonly known McCumber plan nor the Smoot plan calls for any considerable outlay of money within the next few years, and some senators said that whatever would be entailed could be taken care of out of the $200,000,000 annual interest on the debt owed by Great Britain, which that country is expected to begin paying this year.

The McCumber plan, like the house bill, would call for no loans to veterans by the government for a period of three years, but banks would be authorized to advance to the soldiers sums equivalent to one-half of the adjusted service credit of the veterans. At the expiration of the three years the treasury would make loans direct to the men.

SMOOT PLAN EXPLAINED
The Smoot plan contemplates the issue of 20-year life insurance endowment policies to the veterans in lieu of all other options heretofore proposed, including the vocational training, home and farm aid and land settlement and it would make no special provision for loans on the policies.

The policies would have a face value equivalent to slightly more than three times the amount of the adjusted service credit of the veterans and the face value would be paid at the end of 20 years or sooner upon the death of the veteran.

After the senators returned to the capitol from the White House there was a discussion among leaders generally as to whether the house should displace the tariff bill. There was some talk about calling a party conference to decide this question, but no formal decision was reached. This may await the president's decision as to the kind of bonus bill he will approve.

President Declares He Will Study McCumber and Smoot Plans

DECISION LATER

Lawmakers Believe Interest on Debt Will Solve Difficulties

WASHINGTON, May 6.—President Harding took under advisement today the modified house soldiers' bonus plan presented to him by a committee of senate Republican leaders. He told the senators that he would study the proposal and the one to be presented early next week by Senator Smoot of Utah, ranking Republican on the senate finance committee and would renew the discussion with them later.

MAYO CONVICTED IN BIGAMY TRIAL

By International News Service.
NEW YORK, May 6.—Virginia St. Julien Mayo, wealthy New Haven, Conn., automobile radiator manufacturer, today was found guilty of bigamy by a jury in the criminal branch of the New York state supreme court.

Justice Finch, who presided, deferred sentence until Tuesday and declined to continue the defendant's bail. Mayo was remanded to the Tombs.

The aged manufacturer, who had based a confident case upon a New York statute of limitations, turned deathly pale, and reeled against the railing on hearing the verdict. His attorneys served notice of appeal.

SHELL SHOCKED, HE GAINS SPEECH AS HE IS ROBBED

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May 6.—Eugene de Mente, 22, who claimed that he was deaf and dumb and said that he was a former soldier, and whose story as written by or for him, gained generous newspaper space two weeks ago, is said to have found his speech and hearing as a result of getting robbed.

De Mente, heretofore known as a shell shock victim, shocked Chief of Detectives Riley M. Beckstead by verbally reporting the alleged robbery. He asserted that he was set upon by six men and robbed. One of his alleged assailants was arrested but proved an alibi and was released. In turn, Chief Beckstead caused de Mente to be held, stating that a vagrancy charge would be lodged against him.

CROWD FILLS TENT TO HEAR SENATOR REED

Missourian Flings Down Gage to Wilson; Denounces Herb Hoover

MOBERLY, Mo., May 6.—(By International News Service) Declaring himself a Democrat who had stood on his party's platform when a Democratic president had not, Senator James A. Reed today flung down the gauntlet to Woodrow Wilson in opening his campaign for the senatorial nomination here this afternoon.

There was only one difference between the president and myself," said Reed, "and that time the president got off the platform and I stayed on."

A roar of applause from the four thousand men and women who filled the big circus ring in which Reed spoke greeted this reply.

Sensing but little pro-Wilson sentiment in his audience, Reed waxed sarcastic.

"Is there anyone here who wanted me to vote for a standing army of one million men?" he asked, and when cries of "No, no" came to him in response, he exclaimed:

"Then you're all traitors; you're not standing by the president."

QUOTES FROM LETTERS
Taking up the former president's denial that he had ever written a letter commending Reed for his work in helping draft the federal reserve law, the Missouri senator raised a sharp issue of veracity by quoting a letter, which he said, he had received from Wilson, warmly praising him for his work on the bill.

The former president is seeking to destroy me because I did not agree with him, just as in the past he sought to destroy other members of congress who ventured to follow their own judgment as to what was right," declared Reed, adding:

SYMPATHY FOR WILSON
"Mr. Wilson is a very sick man. My sentiments toward him are not those of animosity but of profound sympathy."

A strong plea for party solidarity was made by Reed. "I come here to close, not to open wounds," he said. Reed attacked the record of the Republican party in state and nation, reiterated his opposition against the league of nations and declared for the independence of the three branches of government.

OGDEN RIVER TO RISE MORE WATCHERS SAY

D. & R. G. Park City Line Out Owing to Flood in Canyon

BRIDGES EXAMINED

South Fork Canyon Still Piled Deep With Melting Snow

With the Salt Lake branch of the Denver & Rio Grande out of commission owing to high water, with an increased area of Salt Lake City flooded, with residents along Ogden river and owners of property on river bank in Ogden canyon apprehensive and with other towns north and south of Ogden reporting freshets, reports coming to The Standard-Examiner indicated that Utah was experiencing one of the worst spring flood problems in years. Fears are expressed that the streams will continue to swell for two or three days unless there is a cold spell.

TEMPORARY LULL
Temporarily receding Saturday afternoon the flood levels of the Ogden and Weber rivers rose shortly before midnight and again lapped at the foundations of dwellings in the district west and north of Washington avenue and the river.

Mayor Frank Francis after a survey of the conditions Saturday announced that he was apprehensive of the high waters today on account of the continued warm spell.

The bridges along both the Ogden and Weber rivers are safe, the mayor said. Watchmen have been placed at the different structures, and in case of danger they are to call for emergency crews.

The fire department has been notified to be ready to respond to calls for assistance from the flood districts.

Residents in the vicinity of Sylvan park were able to get in and out of their homes, although the water in some instances had flooded the yards and filled cellars and basements.

DYKES ARE BUILT
Many of them had built dykes to keep the water away, but it was a steady rise in the level of the water that was the real danger.
